B. C. Fruit Up

British Columbia fruit on the prairies is going to command a somewhat high price this year, according to reports that are brought back from the fruit districts by Dr. J. Stead, who has just returned from Kelowna. The fruit buyers have covered the ground and boxes of apples have been bought on the spot in some places at a price as high as 25¢ a box. The production of tomatoes has been aid to a great year by the overhauling and fitting of a large sized cannery at Kelowna with a capacity of 60 cans per minute.

Women, Prepare!

Thousands of women in Canada have suffered from rheumatic diseases, and have been cured of them by Dr. P. D. Price's Favorite Prescription. This temperate medicine, though started nearly half a century ago, sells most widely to-day. It is a simple, safe, natural preparation, as well as liquid, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, rheumatism, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Price. It is made from nature's roots and herbs and does not contain a particle of alcohol or any narcotic. It's not a secret prescription for a physician, but a simple one that has passed and professes to forestall a general paralysis in the supply of wheat.

The One Industry That Is Always Safe to Follow

The world is in delirium. The world fever makes it so. Business is abnormal and sub-normal. Some industry is at high speed and other at low tide. Prices have been held high. Wages have climbed to dizzy heights, in shop, factory and furnace. The reaction is as sure as nature's law. The world will not last. After the war, what? Will the fever pass? Will city industry be hit and land? Will agriculture be hit? One industry that is always safe to follow is the husbandry of the farm. When war has had its way and wants have been satisfied, the soil is the soil as the source of natural wealth and prosperity. The fires of many furnaces will die out. Countless chimneys will cease to vomit smoke. The market will be macabre and munitions of war will languish and cease to fatten.—The Toledo Blade.

Favorite Prescription, and I never had time to recommend it to my friends."—Mrs. Annie Soules, 41 West St. N.

St. Louis, On.—"I was greatly perplexed by taking Dr. Price's Favorite Prescription; it was before twins came. I had become all run-down, was nauseated, very nervous and weak, and suffered with headache. We were not able to stay away for three months, when I began taking Favorite Prescription. It soon came, and I was not long when I was strong and healthy again. Favorite Prescription was surely a great help to me and I am glad to recommend it."—Mrs. L. J. Marple, St. Kent Lane.

Germany's Labor Army

German Military Authorities Lay Stress on Value of Their Prisoners

"Our growing labor army" is the description applied by the Nazis to their prisoners of war. According to a communiqué in the latest Berlin papers, Germany and her vassals believe that they now hold 1,000,000 prisoners. For the first time the German military authorities lay stress on the supreme value of their prisoners as a labor-power factor in their war culture. "They are so numerous, it is asserted, that they go far toward compensating Germany for the men she has had to withdraw from her vital pursuits for active military service. "The longer the war lasts," the communiqué adds, "the more adaptable these prisoners become to the work assigned them, and the more useful to us."

Prisoners have a majestic air of big figures, it is explained, and their education in the "labor army" in prisoner camps is numerically greater than the whole male working-class population of Denmark, Norway and Sweden combined, "and is equivalent to one-fifth the total number of working men in Germany before the war."

Worms in children's work have these pests attack the tender lining of the intestines and if left to persist will undermine the ability ultimately to perforate the wall, because these worms are of the hook variety that cling to and feed upon intestinal surfaces. Worm Powder will not only exterminate these worms, of whatever variety, but will serve to repair the injury they have done.

On the one hand we are told to buy our clothes now if we do not want to pay triple price next season, and on the other we are asked to wear our old clothes until the war is over. In this way we are between the Kaisers and the deep sea—Hamilton Times.

What Will You Do For Help?

FARM help is scarce, but this condition can be relieved to a marked degree by using machines that accomplish more work in a given time with less man power.

Why should the farmer cling to horses—a slow, expensive means of power—when every other business is adopting the truck and thereby reducing the cost of hauling, speeding up deliveries, and saving for human needs the food that the horses would otherwise consume?

The motor driven truck can work constantly at maximum load under the burning summer sun, or in the coldest weather. Unlike the horse it needs no rests while working, it eats only while in actual use, and when the day's work is done it requires very little attention, and leaves you free for other "chores" about the place. Then, it can be housed in one-quarter the space of the horses, wagon and harness it replaces.

It is a commonplace idea that a truck is useful only for driving upon paved roads. The Ford can be driven all over the farm, and used for hauling grain, potatoes, onions, roots, fertilizer, wood, stock, milk, and other products. The speed it travels, the time it saves, and its low upkeep cost appeal very strongly to all users of the Ford Truck. If you need help, order your Ford One Ton Truck today.

Local and General

Private McRory took advantage of his six days leave of absence to move his tinsmithing implements from the building occupied for that business. We hear D. Ontkes intends to fit it up as his office.

We always like to hear of the advancement of our young men. E. S. McRory has certainly made good since he joined the U.G.G., and now after two or three advances has been appointed to the position of assistant manager of that growing business.

German Experts Trying to Explain Allied Successes

German war experts are hopelessly at odds in trying to explain the present situation on the western front. Twice each day General Ludendorff's communiques announce "victorious repulses," but a glance at the map shows each successive location mentioned the scene of fighting lies a few miles eastward.

This, says the Hamburg Nachrichten's military expert darkly, is "a bad sign for the Allies" because it shows that his attempts to pin the German front have failed and that he seeks to substitute width for depth." His conclusion is that "the earlier German thrust towards Amiens foretold the enemy, and now, even if the Germans are losing ground, it is no absolute gain for the enemy, but merely the recovery of earlier losses."

SCHEME GONE WRONG

These sophistries are not wholly shared by the Kreuz Zeitung's critic, who frankly admits that it is the German scheme that has gone wrong inasmuch as "the enemy has successfully evaded battle on both sides of Rheine and therefore the German plan to tear and split the enemy reserves has failed."

He adds incidentally that American aid "has happened to flow somewhat free than anticipated, and Marshal Foch is thereby able to deliver his blow."

It is no longer a fight for lines, but for deep zones, this critic says, and the task of the German army is to destroy the enemy's forces within these zones. He insists the strategics success will be denied Marshal Foch because the preliminary conditions for success are lacking, but the general, he thinks, will continue for a long time.

FOR DELUSED AMERICANS

The German Tagess Zeitung's critic follows another line of thought and believes that "the next few days must show that Marshal Foch needs breathing space, as strategically he has already lost the battle and the enemy's losses are enormous."

Herr Schuermann, writing for the Nord Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, cryptically explains why the Franco-British gain of territory is really a loss and shakes his head over "the poor deluded Americans, who in their pride came over to dictate peace in a few weeks and now, instead of a brief adventure, find themselves involved in battles which will be hard and long."

The Rhenish Westphalian Gazette's correspondent, Baron der Osten, fills a column "with justifiable hope" that the German army will be unbeatable, although he is not very comfortable about it, for he says "the battle is very hard and the enemy's superiority in men and material is very great."

Must Have Nerve

The orders that the "chasing pilot" attached to the aviation corps of the British forces at the front had to undergo before they are considered an expert in their perilous work are sufficiently trying to test the nerve of the bravest flyer. As an army correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger puts it, the candidate who passes the required course of aerial gymnastics must either be all nerve or possessed of no nerves at all.

At this school, he says, you will see an airplane, thousands of feet aloft, suddenly dip its nose up and begin to climb vertically if the pilot intended to loop the loop. Suddenly it comes down and remains for perhaps a full minute poised perpendicularly on its tail. Then suddenly the engine switched off, it falls helplessly tail first, spinning giddily round and round in a way that resembles the helpless flutter of a failing leaf. Then suddenly the engine roars again, the twisting fluttering "dead" thing becomes instinct with life, rights itself majestically on flashing pinions, swoops down in swift and headlong course, mounts the wind and soars up and up, as light and gracefully as a bird.

Other nerve-shattering things do, these soaring young demigods of the air—feats that seem nothing short of miraculous to the earth-bound ones who stand gazing upward in awe.

THE IMPORTANCE OF SEA POWER IN THE PRESENT WORLD CONFLICT

KEEP A SHARP EYE ON THE OCEAN, SAYS CRITIC
Archibald Hurd, the Naval Expert, Says the Fundamental Fact
In the Present Struggle is the Might of the Sea Power,
Which has Grip on the Enemy

The necessity of keeping an eye upon the importance of sea power in the present conflict, despite the close attention claimed by the land battles, is emphasized by Archibald Hurd, the naval expert, writing in the Daily Telegraph.

"We have been apt at the recent offensives on the western front," Mr. Hurd writes, "to ignore the real aspects of the war, notably, the fundamental factor, which is sea power. After a period of fifteen months, during which only a few ships in ships have been destroyed, the danger of which has now been definitely arrested. Not only is our sea power increasing, but our grip on the enemy is firmer than at any previous period of the war."

"Seven million tons of shipping enter or leave our ports every day. Each ship is the port for a number of sub-marines, yet there have been days in the present week when the enemy has not secured a single ship."

"Twelve months ago we were still difficult in maintaining our lines of traffic, namely, that which brought us food and raw material. Today supplies are flowing through this marshy country with a speed of a year ago. At the same time another stream of traffic has started and merchant shipping has been made available for the greatest transport movement which has ever been carried out."

"For three months past American troops have been coming across the Atlantic in great numbers, and much faster than at one time was thought possible. That means that the balance between the allies and the central powers is being adjusted in favor of the former."

Canada's Great Airmen Best in the Game

Major Bishop Has Record of 72 Machines Brought Down

Major Bishop, Canada's famous fighting airmen, who has just returned to the service after 25 victories, is still the head of a list of living aviators in number of machines brought down. His total is 72, and is only exceeded by the record of late Captain Richthofen, German "pioneer airmen," who was credited with 80.

It is indeed probable that Bishop's record is a much better one than the German's, the British records being crediting an aerial victory being much more stringent than that of the enemy.

The following are the latest available figures on the number of machines brought down by the star flyers of the various belligerents:

Canadian—Major V. A. Bishop, 72; Captain Royden, 21; British—Lieut. Albert Ball, 51; French—Capt. Georges Guynemer, 52; Lieut. René Fonck, 45; Lieutenant, 36; Lieut. Maden, 32; American—Major Raoul Lufbery, 16.

German—Baron von Richthofen, 80; Captain Richthofen, 32; Captain Berthold, 52; Lieut. Menkenhoff, 31; Lieutenant, 27; Lieut. Musthoff, 27; Lieutenant, 27.

Gentlemen Both
"When I was at the front," the Italian premier related to Mr. Ward Price, "an Italian peasant told me that an English soldier had offered him some tea, but didn't like it. I said that he did not like it, but I did. I told him that I had Englishman's feelings, I drink it. Then I gave the English soldier some of that tea. I was at it." Such is the friendly feeling our compatriots have for each other."

More than 30,000 women volunteers are engaged on war work connected with the German Field Army.

England and America

Historical Prejudices Giving Way to a Better Understanding

In this latest addition to the series of University of Chicago war papers, the author, Dr. Conyers Read, says that among the allies of the United States the western front is associated with a strong favor of the English. This dislike of the English he regards as especially unfortunate, for the English, when the prosecution of the war demands it, involves the behavior of the English in the closest co-operation and sympathy between the English and ourselves. "Historical prejudice against Englishmen," he says, "is fortunately giving way to a better understanding of the part England has played in the making of America." This is a great historical fact, he says, that during the formative period of our national growth we were essentially English in language, laws, customs of thought, and standards of right and wrong, and this has given our nation its character, which the revolution did not change.

The author regards as of peculiar significance the fact that we have lived next door to England in peace for over a hundred years and that there has grown up between us a common and intimate understanding, quite different from the conceptions current in the Old World. We accept this relationship with our own intelligence, understanding. Dr. Read asserts, because she is the great and most expert of our democratic ideals of government. It is hard for Americans to comprehend that popular government can find expression in other forms besides that of representative power. The power is nominally the English's, but it is really exercised by a group of ministers who are nothing more than an executive committee of the English government. Nowhere in the world perhaps during the last ten years has the land-holding aristocracy suffered more severe defeat than in England, and nowhere has recent legislation been more liberal in providing for the necessities of the poor and preventing the exploitation of the poor by the rich.

The best of reasons why America and England should fight side by side is the fact that the English ideals of government are our ideals, and that England has quite as fair a claim as we have to be numbered among the great democracies of the world.

Means German Defeat

The Situation for the Allies Was More Critical a Year Ago

The breakdown of the submarine campaign, even though the Germans have won in the field, it makes possible a constant reinforcement of the allied armies from the continent, and the entry of the United States. In that light the situation for the allies was critical a year ago than it is today. The submarine campaign, the height of its successes, and it did seem feasible that it might prevent America putting forth its whole power. All claim of any such result has come from the central powers to find the means to counter the constant growth in the armies of the allies. The central powers have been fighting at sea as well as on land before we can get any true idea of the relative position of the combatants.

Mogey in Hogs
Does hog raising? This is a question to which an economic answer can be given to the thousands of farmers of the western Canada, who have found this branch of farming very remunerative. Mr. N. W. Harrington, of Bashaw, Alberta, has one of the best farms in the 1700-acre farm near Bashaw. His faith in the future of the industry in Alberta is shown in the fact that he has actually raised a sum sufficient of hogs to take all the feed he grows. As he has some nine hundred acres in crop, this is a large amount of feed. The yield of about 35,000 bushels of various grains, he is quite capable of taking care of a much larger number of hogs than he has at present.

Using Potato Cakes
Mr. S. Kettle, foreman of the grand jury at the assizes recently held at Lethbridge, was charged with using flour in six months in a family of six by the use of potato cakes as a substitute for bread.

Splendid Conduct Of Canadian Men

The Imperial Authorities are Unanimous in Verdict

The following has been received by the militia department from Sir Edward Kemp, minister of overseas military forces of Canada:

"The following are the words of the Imperial authorities in regard to the conduct of all soldiers that we have to deal with. 'This is the opinion of an imperial authority responsible for the conduct of all soldiers in London, to the question, 'How do the Canadian soldiers conduct themselves in London?'

From time to time statements are circulated in Canada, which tend to give the impression that the men do not go well with our troops overseas. One time it takes the form of criticizing the 'pig corps'; another time it is the 'Irish corps'; another time it involves the behavior of the English at the front, or of the French, or elsewhere. They are always at variance with the fact. It is a strange coincidence that those who are most inclined to make good, and who desire to pull the rest of the world down to their level,

The imperial authorities are not only unanimous about the splendid conduct of the Canadian men, but pay tribute to the conduct of the men of the Canadian overseas forces. "We could not ask for better, able, and straighter men to work with. The Canadian headquarters do everything possible to make good, and, as far as possible, to do well. As far as possible, we reciprocate the results of co-operation working out most satisfactorily."

Regarding the conduct of the Canadian troops in both England and France, it will be reassuring to know that the percentage of crime is less than in any army in Canada and it is even in men in the Dominion before the war.

A very senior British officer, just returned from long service in France and now connected with the provost marshal's staff in London, reported to a staff in a question regarding the conduct of troops, said: "I don't know much about the Canadian troops, but as far as I can see, the best troops in the country, which is a great part of the population is going from the cities and keeneest."

The Canadian provost marshal's staff have the reputation for being an exceedingly able and efficient force. They work on the basis that a man is innocent until the evidence against him is clear. An officer of the Canadian forces has been fendered with a sharp jerk up. He is given the error of his ways, and the right course is pointed out to him.

But the number of criminals and wrong-doers in the Canadian force is far less than in any other army in the world, and nowhere has recent legislation been more liberal in providing for the necessities of the poor and preventing the exploitation of the poor by the rich.

The best of reasons why America and England should fight side by side is the fact that the English ideals of government are our ideals, and that England has quite as fair a claim as we have to be numbered among the great democracies of the world.

"What is Miss Austin like?" she asked.
Foster was careful to understand that he was not to be asked what she needed; but it was her friend and must do her justice, while any breach of good taste would be noticed and would bring him to consider. He did his best, without learning if he had produced the right effect or not for Alice let the matter drop, as if "Perhaps it's a pity you helped the men who were poaching," she said. "I'm afraid you'd get romantic adventures."

"I sometimes rash and sorry afterwards," Foster admitted. "However, there's an excuse for the other thing. 'This is a romantic country, and I've spent a week in Canada,' did, with another business-like."

Alice gave him an approving smile, but she said, "One shouldn't be sorry afterwards. Isn't that rather weak?"

"I'm human," Foster rejoined. "A thing looks different when you come to pay for it. It's pretty hard not to feel sorry then."

"After that may be better than counting the cost, beforehand, and leaving the thing undone."

"You're a Borderer; one of the best," Alice said. "I'm glad that you broke the invasions and afterwards defied their own rulers for a while."

"As a matter of fact, a number of border wars were fought in the days they fought for their enemies' cattle and the ransom of captured knights."

"Not always," Foster rejoined. "At Flodden, where the English 'spars' all fell in the same square, the Scots king came down from his strong camp to meet the English on equal terms. That isn't the right material," Featherstone remarked.

"That's what I said," Foster agreed.

"Hulton soon got into the way of sending for Lawrence when he wanted any number that had been carelessly given in. In this he's a kind of a kind of consulting his personal assistant, and I imagine likes his personal."

He was silent for the next minute or two. Featherstone's remark had shown him more clearly than he had hitherto realized how high Lawrence stood in the estimation of the est.

No other outsider was treated with such confidence by the powerful company. Then he told Featherstone about his journey, and the latter said:

"I have heard nothing from Daly, but soon after you left, a gentleman from Edinburgh came here, to inquire about you."

"Ah!" said Foster rather sharply.

"I suppose he was sent by the police and imagine I met him at my hotel. His name was... Gordon. I suppose it came to him that he got me his case."

"That was the name. He asked if I knew you and I said I did."

"In a way, but there was always a business proposition to justify the risk," Foster rejoined. "It's good to be resourceful, though, and one can feel as I read about your ancestors that I envied them. There must have been some charm in riding about the world in the lady's trolley glove or one's steel cap, ready to follow where adventure called."

"So far as we know," said Alice, "it was the custom to honor the child above the parents. The children were rude, but they had their virtues, and there are some pretty stories of their constancy."

People say we are decadent and getting slack with luxury, but one must think the spirit of the race survives in a changed condition and cannot be destroyed. There is a colliery not very far off where the water broke in some years ago. The few who escaped went back into the pit—and never came up. They knew the thing was impossible, their heads were jammed there, but they would not be stopped. Well, the colliery was not reopened, the shaft-head towers were pulled down, but there's a granite fountain on the mossy bank, and there are records to record the splendid sacrifice.

"They had all to lose," said Foster, "and I'm afraid the administration hoped to emulate a dead like that."

Alice changed the subject rather abruptly. "When you have told me all about your life, I'll tell you something mysterious about the packet. It all seems to have some connection with Lawrence's affairs, and I don't see how you suppose you have no explanation?"

"Not yet. I feel there's something going on in which I may be involved. The clues break off, but I may find one that's stronger, and then..."

He stopped, but Alice gave him an understanding smile, and then followed the clue, even if it led into some danger, "for Lawrence's sake!"

"I'd try," said Foster with a flush, "but I think I have a curious ingenuous look."

"Alice, I've no particular talent for that kind of thing. I mightn't do much good, but you have, accused me of being romantic, and I've owned that I am."

Alice smiled. "You're certainly modest, but there's a rashness that's just the same as generosity."

The Featherstones were in and after a time took Foster to the library, where he gave him a cigarette.

"It's strange we have no heart in this place yet," he said, with a disturbed voice. "He's given the girls on the farms that they are taking farmette classes and making traps for the hayfield and the berry patch."

A Guide To Peace Talk

How Long Is It Going to Be Possible to Deceive the Mass of the German People?

There will be peace proposals inspired by Berlin. They will reiterate that the German government has no predatory intentions—wants nothing but honorable peace on such terms as will insure the future security of the empire. Read them with these few plain and simple facts in mind:

The government could have had an honorable peace on the eastern front, with ample guarantees for the future security of the empire. Russia had signed a peace. Russia was helpless. By simply reaching out its hand Berlin could have had exactly such a peace as it says it wants—a peace that fully satisfies its own conscience and laid the basis for friendly self-respecting relations between the two nations in the future.

But Berlin did not intend to make such a peace. Then it struck a gun against Russia's head and sent it to the other provinces—knowing well enough that the outrage would provoke Russia's hatred and make an implacable enemy of her. Even Lorraine, once an enemy of France for Bismarck, at least, he did not preface his seizure with a shamed lie. Seeing that he had made a basis for peace during peace—all these Germany could have had of Russia by simply reaching out its hand. It deliberately chose the dishonor, hatred—the seed of a new war.

When the government which did not within the year pratfalls at winning nothing except its own nature and its own iniquity, during peace, all these Germany's head will be deceived.

How it is in view of the fundamental fact, it is hard to be possible to deceive the people about the intentions of their government? — Saturday Evening Post.

Couch Grass

Seeds of This Weed Greatly Resemble Those of Western Ryegrass

Prof. S. A. Bedford, chairman of Manitoba's weed commission, says: "Numerous enquiries come to this office regarding the different varieties of couch grass and how best to eradicate them. In Western Canada there are two varieties of couch grass, quick and twin grass, and both are very injurious to farm crops."

The native variety, western couch, (Agropyron glaucum) has a decided gray-green colored foliage. Although very troublesome when matted in a field, this is not nearly so difficult to eradicate as the imported variety.

The imported variety (Agropyron repens) has a wide-spreading, deeply fibrous root system which is allowed to remain for any length of time, these root-stocks form matted beds which choke out grain or feed crops and prevent them from getting to the joint and ripening its seeds in July. Owing to the fact that it is propagated both from the seeds and from creeping root-stocks, it quickly gains possession of a field, and it is then established. The seeds of this weed greatly resemble those of western ryegrass and very often it is found growing with the grass and thus spread over clean farms.

Although the two varieties of couch grass differ somewhat in their appearance, the methods used are the same for their eradication. During the month of June the land should be plowed in one direction, as far as possible, and then immediately to remove the roots of the plants. Let this plowed land dry, then harrow and cultivate with a narrow-bladed cultivator, the land being leveled and many roots brought to the surface, let them lie on the surface to die, or, better still, rake them off and burn. Then cross-rolling cultiver, if the sod is badly matted. After being allowed to dry out somewhat, the sods are then to be cut with a scythe, root-cultivator, spring-tooth harrows, etc., and the roots brought to the surface to be dried out and possibly burned. If the land is to be sown with wheat, and it is not impossible to destroy all the root-stocks in one season, it is an excellent plan to plow the land again about 15 days the following year and immediately sow to barley, using about three bushels of seed per acre. This heavy seeding will produce such a stand of barley that any remaining couch plants will be smothered out.

Did He Get Her?

We were very much in love, and finally agreed upon his courage to the point of proposing.

"Darling," he said, "I lay my fortune at your feet." "Yes," replied the methodical young man, "and how deep are you in love?" "It isn't much of a fortune," came the cool reply. "But besides those heavy feet of yours, he would look like a regular Rockefeller lump." —Geo. Jaw News.

Alberta's Bacon Production Grows

Will Be 25 Per Cent Increase This Year, According to Estimates

A 25 per cent increase in Alberta's bacon production this year is looked for by government live stock officials. The government's War Department, which the campaign has shaped up most satisfactorily, and the prospect for more pork and bacon products is rendered distinctly good. There is a smaller percentage of bacon among the young pigs this spring than for the last three years, and it is not pretty well assured that the percentage of live stock to be sent to the war will be multiplied in about the proportions hoped for when the increased production can be started. Farmers and stockmen in general have responded to the appeal willingly and adequately and things are running well in pig production.

From the activities of the government department alone, some 3,000 bacon-makers will be added to the 10,000 now active, according to Mr. Stevens. About 400 breeding sows were placed with farmers through the agency of the live stock branch, and these will average something over 100 pounds of bacon each, coming from all sections of the province. It is estimated that the young stock is taking a firm hold on life, as it is feeding keenly and showing signs of overeating, and the proportion of bacon on the pig farms has been considerably enlarged. Each sow will probably produce about 200 pounds of bacon in eight months' time, and some will be sent to market in six months. Besides the stimulus given to bacon production through the government's campaign, there has been an indirect gain through the increased operations of individual farmers and stock growers.

Worth Knowing

Splendid Morals of the Soldiers at the Front

Writing under date of April 8, Prof. Carl Holliday, of Toledo University, now doing Y.M.C.A. welfare work in France, says:

"All sorts of investigators" arrive here to look into the "moral temptations" surrounding our boys. They must, however, be told that most of them are plain decent fellows who haven't seen a drunken American in all France.

"If only the government would declare an embargo against the numerous investigating parties that afflict us! We have the investigators on the civil drill, investigators on the civil drill, investigators on the civil drill, and others. They are here to see that every fellow who wants to see France tries to get on some investigation committee. You should see the soldiers grin when one mentions 'investigating'."

"Really, there is nothing to investigate, as far as I'm told, and I'm told with tells you, he is getting better than ever before; he is too busy to think of meanness during the day, and too tired at night, even if he has time to think of it."

Our American public should remember that the average French girl is far more carefully watched and guarded than any American girl.

This camp life is making a real man of many a "sissy" whose parents were making life much too easy for him." —Life.

Expecting Peace

German Chancellor Believes Peace Will Come This Year

"I am still optimistic enough to believe we shall have peace this year," said Dr. Arthur von Hertling, in an interview with the Berlin correspondent of the Budapest newspaper at East.

"I cherish first confidence that our country will bring us nearer a speedy end of the war."

"If the world should one day unite in an international peace league," said Count von Hertling, "Germany would undoubtedly and fully join in it. Unfortunately, present conditions give very little hope of this. Our desire is to preserve peace."

Germs Use Dogs as Couriers

I have seen two or three orders found upon captured German prisoners to the effect that the Germans themselves that fact that courier dogs are in very general use as a means of communication between different battalions and regiments of an entire army. To all appearance this peculiar branch of war service has reached a high state of development on the animal side of No Man's Land. The animals used are German sheepdogs—a breed well known for its great strength and endurance. Four or five are attached to every special officer, and they are exercised every day in the task of carrying communications.—Fall Mail Gazette.

Close Accounting

"You are really in love?" "Yes," replied the methodical young man, "and how deep are you in love?"

"Just a moment while I consult my expense account. Ahem! Up to the present moment I have attained a depth of $814.73." —Birmingham Age-Herald.

What Supremacy In the Air Means

Where It Becomes Practically Impossible to be an Enemy Airplane to Shoot Itself

Complaints made by experts between the Germans' Whitechapel raid on London and the British daylight raid on Cologne, are distinctly to the advantage of the British. There are certain grounds, which the New York Times is requested not to make public yet, which go far to justify the claim of the absurd term "supremacy in the air."

In view of experts, supremacy in the air should only be really claimable when a stage is reached where it becomes practically impossible for an enemy airplane to shoot itself. It is hoped that such a stage will be attainable when America's actual contribution to the allied air forces becomes commensurate with its program.

Meanwhile, the British royal air force will safely suffice to accomplish the present measure of relative superiority. Incidentally, it may be mentioned that while examination of the German enclaves elicited a meed of surprise, they were still little more than flat, as possible, as the saloons where flour as possible, and that they will serve nothing made wholly or in part at afternoon tea or late suppers.

The committee has mailed to every pledge signer a request that each one who has already signed a pledge to do so, to do so again. The signed mail brought numerous responses, and the committee is very hopeful that in this way the list of those involved in food service will be largely increased.

Women's Committee Active in the Conservation of Wheat

Manitoba Ladies are Promoting the Conservation of Wheat

Since the visit of Mr. Edward F. Treitz, to Western Canada, the Women's Conservation Committee, which is a subcommittee of the Manitoba Food Resources Committee, has been doing splendid service in the interest of conservation of wheat. The committee has sent the copy of the Winnipeg sun, and 25,000 copies of Mr. J. D. McGregor's appeal to eat nothing made of wheat which can possibly be derived without being "authorized" to do so, to the men's societies in the province. The saloons are asked that they refrain from serving anything made of wheat, except in part from wheat at their afternoon and evening gatherings.

The letter also advised that a rule should be strictly observed where all entertainments to raise funds for patriotic or philanthropic purposes.

Prussian Method

The Hun Sergeant Had a Wonderful Imagination

During the invasion of Belgium a captain in a Prussian regiment got hold of a hundred fresh eggs, some of which were broken, and this time on there will be seen a gradual elimination of the practice of the men who had waste thousands of acres of land and practically destroyed, year after year, the thousands of acres of crops.

The men were sent on reports from their own inspectors, and from inspectors who are attached to land owned both in Canada and the United States, owning many acres in this province.

All are agreed that a great improvement can be easily seen in the manner in which the Red Cross works. This has been brought about by the vigorous and judicial enforcement during the past three years of the Manitoba National War Activities. Farmers are unanimous in the opinion that at last the government has adopted the right plan in teaching the men to use the best methods of cultivation to the weeding of the land.

There are 110 rural municipalities in Manitoba, and there are 1,000 inspectors working full time from May 15 to October 15, each year.

Their duties are to inspect each and every farm in every municipality, instruct the farmers on how to teach them the best methods of eradication of weeds, and to teach the men that the correct methods of cultivation are adopted in summer, fallowing for the purpose of weed control.

These inspectors also report to the men who have more than 100 acres each farmer has in crop, the manner of cultivation and the kind of weeds found and how they have been handled.

It has been found that practically not a municipality in the province is entirely free from noxious weeds, and that farmers have to cultivate to maintain small patches of soil that the farmer was not aware that such existed. Prompt measures have been taken in every such case to eradicate the weeds.

"The work is only well under way," said a member of the weeds commission. "We are satisfied that we are making great strides, and we know that we are getting results. There is much to be done, and there are many areas of strenuous work ahead of us, but we can feel that we have finally come into an inexpensive, but

Thirty-seven Years Of Prohibition

Question Is No Longer a Matter of Discussion in Kansas

May 1 was the thirty-seventh anniversary of the adoption of prohibition in the state of Kansas, and an interesting recital of the history of these 37 years was printed in the New York Tribune, which caused the prevailing opinion in its home state on this question which has of late years commanded almost universal attention. The Tribune has so thoroughly established in the life of the state that Kansas people pay little heed to the number of years it has been in effect.

Prohibition is The Star, no longer a matter of discussion in Kansas. There was a time when an amendment to the constitution could be started most anywhere, on the train, in the hotel lobby, in store, office or even in the homes. For many years there always was a question as to whether the day had passed. One could get as far as to go to a meeting of a community as it was willing to do so. The signed mail brought numerous responses, and the committee is very hopeful that in this way the list of those involved in food service will be largely increased.

The letter also advised that a rule should be strictly observed where all entertainments to raise funds for patriotic or philanthropic purposes.

The committee has mailed to every pledge signer a request that each one who has already signed a pledge to do so again. The signed mail brought numerous responses, and the committee is very hopeful that in this way the list of those involved in food service will be largely increased.

As a matter of fact, says The Star, there never has been a day in the thirty-seven years of prohibition in which Kansas did not go to the saloon. The overwhelming sentiment of the state has been on the side of prohibition at all times. The people were too patient for many years with methods of law enforcement, and allowed the politicians to "play the game" in order to get the "wet" vote. But when the people spoke, the joints were closed.

One of the early forms of political entertainment in Kansas was the movement in every campaign to re-elect the men who had been elected to the legislature. The joint-keepers of the breweries held conferences to "formulate plans" to "make smooth passage" in the legislature. They would employ "smooth talkers" to make the plans "sound" to the electorate. "Finally," says the narrator of the story, "there was a wonderful inspiration. 'Killed a warden,' said one of the soldiers. 'Killed one of the soldiers.' —Van-Couver Provost.

Delivered From Bondage

Hatred and Mistrust of Austria for Her Masterful Ally

The incident of Emperor Karl's letter affected the men and convincing knowledge in Europe: the hatred and mistrust of Austria for her masterful ally, the Prussian Monarchy, to share the shackles of the Dual Monarchy.

It is not forgotten that she, too, was robbed by Prussia of her fair, young, and innocent sons. She will bring no compensation for her sacrifices on behalf of Germany. A German defeat means escape from a home which is ruled by a master who has been responsible for the most defeat and disaster to the British navy. While that navy holds the seas war maps and land successes are at a discount in a small town flag market in German cities, but the furnaces will be cold in German factories.—London Daily Express.

Melting Monuments

Germans at End of Raw Materials

Workers arriving from Switzerland to Germany say a despatch from Berlin to the Paris Matin assert that the Germans are having great difficulty in obtaining raw material for their industries. Some 200 German newspapers daily publish ordinances commanding materials and ordering the melting of ornaments and other articles containing gold, silver, and doors and windows being specified.

The Need for Men

Just out on the battle field, the decisive need of the war is men. Men who will not falter, men who will not criticize, men who will not desert, men who will not be afraid of the war situation, exceed that which those have placed in the government to carry on Canada's part in the war. Men who will back up the government in its efforts to win the war should give—gladly and generously, to win a triumphal victory for honor and liberty and a peace that will end the war.

Sad Death of Mr. Donald McFadyen

Donald McFadyen, of Crossfield, met with a sad accident on Monday evening last, whilst attending to a young horse belonging to his son Archie, by some means he got knocked down and trampled upon by the animal. He was found in a helpless condition in the barn, he had four ribs staved in and other injuries. Dr. Whillans was called in and did what he could to relieve his suffering. He was conveyed to the General Hospital at Calgary on on Wednesday morning, he however, gradually sank and died on Thursday morning about nine o'clock. Mr. McFadyen was born in Kirkfield, Ont., and was 71 years of age, he went from Ontario to Dakota, and came to Crossfield in 1901, he had followed the occupation of a farmer all his life.
